Tips on Evaluating “Train the Trainer” Workshops

This document includes some tips and examples for you to consider when you need to evaluate the effectiveness of your Train the Trainer workshop. Please feel free to use or modify any of the material included in this document.

I have provided you with three options for evaluating your workshop. The first option is the simplest and easiest, and can be used to give you basic information about how the participants felt about your training.

OPTION 1: Do not include a Pre-Training Survey. At the end of the workshop, give participants a one-page (double sided) Post-Training Survey that asks them about their perception of the extent to which the training increased (1) their knowledge about the topic, and (2) their ability to train on the topic. If you use this option, be sure to include the demographic questions (which are now at the end of the Pre Survey) to the end of your Post Survey.

OPTION 2: Include the Pre-Training Survey and Post-Training Survey, but without ID numbers. Option 2 includes using the Pre-Training Survey as well as the Post-Training Survey, but mostly as a way for you to learn what participants already know at the beginning of your training [which can be very helpful to know!]. In this option, you will not be comparing individuals’ Pre and Post Surveys so you do not need ID numbers.

OPTION 3: Include the Pre-Training Survey and Post-Training Survey, with items testing people’s knowledge, and with ID numbers. Option 3 can be used to conduct a more rigorous evaluation, if you have the capability to compare Pre and Post surveys. This is more common when you have a funder who wants more objective indicators that your training really improved people’s knowledge. For this option, be sure to include objective “test” items that test people’s actual knowledge. In other words, instead of just asking “Do you think you know more about [your topic] since participating in this training?” you would have actual test items to see if knowledge has changed.

General Tips

Keep surveys SHORT. Ideally, they will be one page, two sided.
Allow time for people to complete the surveys, and tell them why their participation is important.
Remind people that the surveys are confidential, and used to improve your trainings.

Using the Templates

The following pages include an example Pre-Training Survey and an example Post-Training Survey for you to modify for your own use. Tips to you are written in purple italics, and should be removed from your final documents. Question numbers will automatically reformat as you add items.

We hope you find these templates useful in evaluating your workshops!

Train the Trainer Pre Evaluation Survey

TEMPLATE

Section 1

Testing knowledge before a training is optional and depends on the type of training being provided. If you want to increase knowledge about a particular topic (e.g., HIV/AIDS, reproductive coercion) you might want to include some items testing people’s knowledge at the beginning of the training. This has two functions:
1) you find out what people already know, so you don’t waste time reviewing information unnecessarily
2) you can see if your training actually did increase knowledge

It is helpful to us to understand the level of knowledge people have coming into this training. Please complete the following survey, answering to the best of your ability. Your knowledge (or lack thereof!) is not a reflection on your intelligence, it simply helps us understand what content to focus on in the training and what we can spend less or no time on. So please answer honestly. If you do not know the answer to a question please answer “don’t know.”

Section 2

Train the Trainers generally have two functions. One is to increase people’s ability to train on a topic (questions below). The other may be to increase the knowledge of participants about a particular topic (questions above).

These questions have to do with how prepared you feel to train others on this topic.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Right now:</th>
<th>Not at all</th>
<th>Slightly</th>
<th>Moderately</th>
<th>Very</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1. How confident are you that you have the information needed to train others on ....[topic]?</td>
<td>1</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>4</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2. How comfortable would you be in training others about ....[topic]?</td>
<td>1</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>4</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Section 3

It is helpful to know who is in your training, and whether responses to items differ by any issues (such as gender, race, years experience, profession). These are examples of the types of questions you might include here.

These last questions will just help us understand who attended this training. Again, all responses are anonymous.

3. How old are you? ______

4. With which gender do you identify?
   - Female
   - Male
5. What is your racial or ethnic identity? (Check all that apply)

- American Indian or Alaska Native
- Asian
- Black/African American
- Latino/Hispanic
- Native Hawaiian or Other Pacific Islander
- White

6. What is your occupation? (this will depend on your training)

- employed by a domestic violence service organization
- employed by a ... organization
- other: please specify _______________________________

Section 4

If you will be matching responses from pre-surveys to post-surveys you will want to obtain ID numbers from people. Below is an example of how to do this simply and easily, while allowing participants to remain anonymous.

And now, just so that we can match surveys without identifying individuals, would you please create a unique ID made up of the following information:

- The first letter of your mother’s first name
- The number of living siblings you have
- The first number of your street address
- The last letter of your father’s first name

Thank you for your feedback!
Train the Trainer Post Evaluation Survey

Thank you for attending this training event. Please take a moment to complete this brief survey to help us improve upon future trainings. Your responses on this survey are anonymous.

_Your first questions can measure the extent to which your training increased people’s knowledge about a topic (if that was a goal), and the extent to which they know feel like they have the skills and confidence needed to train on the topic._

IF, in the Pre Survey, you asked specific knowledge items, you can ask those identical items again here in order to see if people’s knowledge increased. This takes a little more work to analyze, so only do this if you have the capability to compare pre and post responses. Otherwise, rely on the first items on the first page to gauge, from the participants’ perspectives, if their knowledge increased.

Please answer the following questions to the best of your ability, but if you do not know, please choose “I don’t know.”

If you are NOT using a Pre-Training Survey, you might want to include the demographic questions that are currently in Section 3 of that survey.

Again, only if you are comparing Pre and Post surveys will you need ID numbers. Otherwise delete the following:

And now, just so that we can match surveys without identifying individuals, would you please create the same unique ID you created for your pre survey:

__ The first letter of your mother’s first name
__ The number of living siblings you have
__ The first number of your street address
__ The last letter of your father’s first name

Thank you for your feedback!
